John Thurman is an American artist known for his diverse and innovative approach to visual art, with a lifelong passion for drawing and painting. John initially worked with watercolor and acrylics, perfecting his skills and artistic vision.

In 2022, he delved into the world of oil painting, fulfilling a long-held aspiration. Despite never considering himself a professional artist, John found immense joy and fulfillment in expressing himself through art.

In early 2023, John started experimenting with AI. Through AI text-to-image programs he quickly became captivated by this new technology. Determined to have greater control over the final output, he began manipulating the generated images using other software programs, such as Photoshop. This exploration continues with his fascination in pixel, generative, and glitch art - a journey of artistic discovery that continues to evolve.

A shift in John's creative career occurred in 2023, when he minted his first NFTs. Embracing this new direction, he found himself fully immersed in the space, shaping a fresh start in his life through his art. Recently, John has been dedicated to creating "glitchpaintings," a unique fusion of AI, collage, and glitch techniques, further pushing the boundaries of digital artistry.

John Thurman's artistic odyssey is a testament of his steadfast commitment to innovation and creativity, continually pushing the boundaries of traditional and digital art forms. His work stands as a captivating reflection of his journey, inspiring others to embrace the limitless possibilities of art in current times.
